The Association serves government officials and the public through its constant efforts to ensure full and fair accountability for all public monies, and by providing a variety of pro bono services throughout the United States and its territories. The Association serves its members by providing education, encouraging professional development, influencing governmental financial management policies and practices and serving as an advocate for the profession."

★ ★ ★ AGA MEMBERSHIP IS A SOLID

as a professional in the public or private sector who specializes in governmental financial management, you are encouraged to take advantage of the many opportunities available through membership in the Association of Government Accountants. AGA membership dues are the lowest of any comparable organization; and, AGA is the only association singularly dedicated to your professional advancement as a government financial manager.

To reflect the varying degrees of expertise, AGA offers three membership classifications:

☞ Full Member - career professionals performing financial management activities in an administrative, supervisory and/or operational capacity or who have made a professional contribution to the improvement of financial management in government;

☞ Associate Member - practicing professionals who have fewer than six years of financial management experience;

☞ Special Associate full-time students and those in their first year of employment.

Once you have selected your membership classification, you then affiliate with your local chapter (see enclosed table for locations and schedule of dues). Those members who do not reside or work near an AGA Chapter are "At-Large" members.

RESEARCH & LEGISLATION

a well-deserved reputation for conducting independent research and analysis of all aspects of government financial management is something AGA prides itself on. These studies have led to a heightened understanding and appreciation of the role and functions of financial managers. They also have led to the recognition of AGA as a leading advocate for improving the quality and effectiveness of government fiscal administration.

AGA uses its base as the collective voice for government financial managers to help shape legislation in close consultation with government entities. Through its ongoing legislative affairs program, AGA works to strengthen government accounting and reporting systems and to enhance the productivity of the financial management process.

ORGANIZED TO MEET YOUR NEEDS

members can actively participate in association activities through membership in nearly 100 AGA Chapters throughout the United States and around the world. Membership offers you an opportunity to exchange ideas, network with peers and gain first hand exposure to governmental financial management issues. AGA Members are represented at the national level by a Regional Vice President and by the President of their Chapter, both of whom serve on AGA's National Board of Directors.

The 12-member elected AGA National Executive Committee is tasked with ensuring the policies and objectives of the Association are implemented in accordance with the directions of the Board of Directors. Each national officer of the Association is selected based on nominations made by chapters and individual members, so that they represent member needs to the fullest.

AGA operations are handled by a full-time staff located in the Washington (DC) Metropolitan Area under the direction of an Executive Director who reports to the National Executive Committee.
